A New Chapter for Sunset Models

For more than fifty years, Sunset Models, 3rd Rail, and Golden Gate Depot have been part of this incredible hobby, building finely detailed models that honor the trains we grew up with and the railroads that shaped not only America, but the entire world. Every project we've done has been guided by one simple goal: to create models that look, feel, run like, and now sound like the real thing.

My name is Jay Escamilla, and I'm proud to carry this company forward as the new President of Sunset Models 3rd Rail. Like many of you, I'm a modeler and a railfan at heart. That passion led me to working alongside Scott Mann, and now, to continuing the legacy he and his father built with the utmost care and dedication.

Our focus isn't changing, we'll keep doing what Sunset has always done best: producing accurate, high-quality models that stand the test of time. But we're also looking ahead, bringing new ideas, technology, and a renewed energy into every project we take on. Whether it's through Sunset Models 3rd Rail or Golden Gate Depot, we're committed to keeping craftsmanship and authenticity at the core of everything we make.

To all our longtime supporters, thank you for being part of this journey. And to those just discovering us, welcome aboard. The signals are green and throttle is wide open accelerating towards the best years ahead.

— Jay Escamilla
President, Sunset Models Group

Keeping The Legacy Rolling

As we bring this catalog to a close, I want to extend my sincere thanks to the many people whose passion and expertise help transform our ideas into the models you run and enjoy today. Contributors like Jonathan Peiffer, Gregory Smith, Peter Kruimer, Richard Dunn, the "Council," and so many others continue to elevate the accuracy and authenticity of every project we undertake.

At Sunset Models 3rd Rail and Golden Gate Depot, our commitment remains simple: combine historical fidelity with modern innovation to deliver the finest scale models in the hobby. Whether it's long-awaited HO developments, new refinement in our O Scale lineup, or long-overdue additions to HOn3, each release represents a renewed dedication to quality under a new chapter of leadership.

My gratitude extends to our design and research teams for their unmatched attention to detail, and to our factory partners whose craftsmanship brings these models to life. And to the collectors, operators, historians, and supporters who give these projects purpose, thank you. Your enthusiasm drives us to keep pushing boundaries and expanding what's possible.

Special thanks to those who shared photography and reference material, including BrassTrains.com, RRPictureArchives.net, Railhawkins.net, the Southern Pacific Historical & Technical Society, Johnny Nguyen, R. Reusch, Eugene Brichacek, and others. Your contributions preserve the legacy of railroading and help us recreate it with accuracy and respect.

We're not just producing models, we're carrying forward a legacy. With exciting projects ahead in HO, O, and HOn3, this new era is just beginning, and I'm thrilled to lead the next chapter of Sunset Models 3rd Rail & Golden Gate Depot.

With appreciation,

Jay Escamilla, President, Sunset Models Group
